Among the outward-bound passengers by the City of Tokio on the 7th November, was the Honourable L. Greville, hitherto Second Scoretary of Her Majesty's Legation, who returns to England to occupy a post at the Foreign. Office, after a residence of less than two years in this country. Mr. Grevillo's frank and sunny disposition made him an universal favourite, and in bidding him Godspeed, we may be permitted to express a sincere hope that, in the routine of official promotion, Japan may soon again be so fortunate as to be the scene of his service.

Fire broke out about half-past three o'clock on the morning of the 5th November in the thicklypopulated quarter of Isezakicho, Yokohama familiar to most foreign residents as the district where most of the public shows and the native theatres are situated. The flames extended almost instantly to the neighbouring houses, as is the case with all fires that occur in Japanese towns, and, fanned by a steady, though not strong, south easterly wind, the fire spread to Fukutomisho, Nichome, and Sanchome; Isezakieho, Ichome, and Nichome; Sugatamicho, and a part of Hagoromocho, in a comparatively short time.
